Dino Treasures

Synopsis

Just as some people dig and look for pirate treasure, some scientists dig and look for treasures, too. These treasures may not be gold or jewels but fossils. Following in the footsteps of Dino Tracks, this sequel takes young listeners into the field with paleontologists as they uncover treasured clues left by dinosaurs. Listeners will follow what and how scientists have learned about dinosaurs: what they ate; how they raised their young; how they slept and fought; and even if they ever got sick. True to fashion, the tale is told through a rhythmic, fun audio that can even be sung to the tune of "Itsy Bitsy Spider".

Customer Reviews

For young readers this picture book offers basic information, attractive illustrations and four pages of learning activities that focus on dinosaurs. The text is rhymed which makes reading the book aloud fun. If you are looking for an inexpensive beginner's book on dinosaurs this would be a solid purchase. Whet the child's appetite with this paperback and then look for a book with greater detail.....

Rhonda Lucas Donald, Cathy Morrison and Arbordale Publishing have put together another fabulous guide for young readers. The author teaches young readers about the habitats and lifestyles of dinosaurs and other prehistoric animals. The inclusions of scientific explorations and the archeologist discoveries of fossils encourages younger readers to explore the world further. The illustrations by Cathy Morrison draws the readers attention to detail and encourages additional conversation regarding the text. Typical of Arbordale Publishing, they have again included additional information at the end of the book for the reader to expand upon and explore further. On the back cover the publishers also provide a web link for additional free activities for children to become engaged with. Another great addition for any inquisitive young child's bookshelf !
